As part of the "Ah boys" group that shot to fame after the "Ah boys to men" franchise, Maxi Lim is no stranger to the local film industry.

A familiar face in both the commercial and independent scene, Maxi has 4 feature films and over a hundred productions consisting of short films, MVs, TVCs, television dramas and variety shows under his belt.

Having made his beginnings from the indie film circuit, he exploited the vast library of roles and honed himself to be a versatile actor, easily alternating roles from different genres.

Appearing in numerous corporate videos and commercials namely for the Health Promotion Board, NTUC and NETS, he is also honored to be the ambassador for Singtel's Easy Mobile.

His modest success from Ah Boys to Men has given him the opportunity to travel around regional countries notably Taiwan, The Philippines and China for film promotions and work.

Maxi made his theatre debut in "Ah Boys to Men The Musical" held at Resorts World Sentosa. Without any prior experience in theatre, Maxi managed to overcome his stage fright and completed all 21 live shows. The musical and his performance received positive reviews from the press and critics.

Maxi is currently working on "Ah Boys to Men 3: The Frogmen" reprising his role as Aloysius Jin aka Wayang King.
